

MDEM employees received training on life safety and first medical emergency treatment

Our everyday lives are full of events and various life situations, which sometimes carry the danger and threat of accidents. Each of us must be prepared to face danger and know how to help our neighbor and, first of all, ourselves until the arrival of professional rescuers and medics.

MDEM employees received training on life safety and first medical emergency treatment on the eve of entering the region in the "red zone". Classes were conducted by specialists of The Regional Training and Methodological Center for Civil Protection, First Aid and Emergency Response in MDEM premises. Two groups of training participants included 26 specialists from different divisions of the company. For two days, participants received a theoretical basis on the legislative field and The Civil Code of Ukraine, the concept and types of emergencies, the basics of first medical emergency treatment, fire safety rules. In addition to the theoretical component, participants had the opportunity to prove theoretical knowledge in practice. This training was held for the second time in the company - last year another group of employees gained the same experience.

Of course, each of us believes that we will not get in a dangerous situation, but understanding the logic and order of actions at a critical moment is of utmost importance for everyone. ■
